Solace for Stephanie Helps 100th Cancer Victim

By Stewart Lytle, Reporter

REGIONAL

— An 82-year-old Salisbury woman suffering with stage 4 cancer was distraught that she could not keep her house clean.

Mary Ann “Mo” Levasseur, a founder of Solace for Stephanie, heard about the woman when a friend mentioned it during a meeting of BNI, the business networking group.

“You’d like to have something in your life intact,” Levasseur said. For this elderly woman, it was having her house in order.

Solace hired a house cleaner who will clean the house for the woman once a month, making her the 100th beneficiary of the organization in its 12-year history, a milestone of joy and charitable giving helping North Shore cancer victims.

Named for Stephanie Jenkins, a popular Rowley hairdresser here, who died of cancer in 2010, the all-volunteer Solace each year has helped 10 or 12 cancer victims and their families with gift cards for food and transportation, their prescriptions, massages and physical therapy. The Salisbury woman was the first recipient to get her house cleaned.

Solace also underwrites college scholarships for family members of cancer victims. And because Jenkins was one of the original founders of the Eiras park playground, the group helped pay to build the park behind the police and fire stations.

Levasseur’s message to the BNI group: “One person can have that impact.”

Solace started in Rowley, but quickly grew to surrounding North Shore communities as far north as southern New Hampshire. “We don’t have a boundary because cancer doesn’t,” Levasseur said.

The organization compares itself to a chain reaction. One person is helped, followed by another person who steps up with a contribution to help others.

“We have a great following,” said Levasseur, who works closely with Stephanie’s husband, Ron, her brother, Dominic, and her sons, Steven, Dan and Kyle Jenkins to manage the non-profit organization.

A good example of the Solace chain reaction is Maureen Sabino, a volunteer and donor for years. Solace helped her brother, Peter, and a close friend.

The Sabinos, including Maureen’s husband Randy and daughter Haley, volunteered at Comedy Night this fall, which attracted a packed Coolidge Hall building at the Topsfield Fair and raised more than $15,000 for Solace.

A few weeks later, Maureen proposed to her eight-team softball league that they hold a small fundraiser during the annual league

Clark School Students Celebrate National Adoption Day

By Stewart Lytle, Reporter

REGIONAL — On National Adoption Day, last Friday, 13 children, along with three rocking horses, painted by students at the Clark School in Rowley, were adopted and given new homes.

Essex County Chief Justice John Casey called the fourth annual adoption day ceremony at the Essex County Probate Court “a joyous occasion.” The adopted children’s names were added with leaves Clark students made from recycled bottles to a Tree of Life that celebrates dozens of North Shore adoptions.

The four rocking horses — Piper, Perilla, Travis and Roxy — were created by Don Stokes, Jocelyne Welch and Mark Little at Abacus Builders in Boston. The horses came with saddles, blankets of world flags and exotic manes, including painted and stained

Parks Conservancy/ Foundation Ties 'Confusing, Not Illegal'

By Stewart Lytle, Reporter

NEWBURYPORT — Former Parks Director Lise Reid has disagreed with City Councilors that the Morrill Foundation and Parks Conservancy have committed fraud in the handling of a donation by Ann Marie Monzione who paid for a rail trail bench to honor her deceased sister.

Councilor Mark Wright last week criticized how the checks written to the conservancy were deposited in the bank account of The Mayor Gayden W. Morrill Charitable Foundation.

Wright, a banker, said unless there is a certificate on record that identifies the foundation as Doing Business As (DBA), the conservancy’s practice of depositing checks written to it in the private foundation’s bank account is “fraud.”

“We the city, previous councils, previous administrations have failed us,” Wright said. “Collectively we have done a poor job.” He called the practice of depositing conservancy checks in the Morrill Foundation accounts “a black eye” for the city.

In a memorandum at-large councilor Bruce Vogel sent to all councilors, Reid wrote: “There is clearly a lack of information as well as mis-information being provided to City Councilors as they publicly consider what they have suggested is fraudulent activity by the Newburyport Parks Conservancy.”

Reid was fired as Parks Director last fall as part of Mayor Sean Reardon’s reorganization of the parks management. The reorganization plan to move the parks maintenance to the Department of Public Works has since been withdrawn.

Sharif Zeid, chair of the council’s budget and finance committee, told the council last week there appears in the foundation’s tax returns to be about $1.3 million over nine years of “unaccepted gift money” that has been funneled through the Morrill Foundation, acting as the conservancy.

Reid wrote: “A 2012 resolution

Letters To The Editor

What is happening to Newburyport's History and heritage and historic homes?

What is happening to Newburyport's History and heritage and historic homes? What is happening to 320 Merrimack street? Why is it being allowed to fall into such a state of disrepair?

The history of the house is tied to Newbury and Newburyport's ship building past. The land on which that house sits and heading west on Merrimack St to Poores Lane now Merrimack Court was owned by Samuel Poore and sold by his widow Rachel Bayley Poore to Samuel Moggaridge in 1730. The land on which the house was subsequently built was sold by John Moggaridge, the son of Samuel, 17th of November 1766 to Abel Merrill, Shipwright and the house was built sometime after that date. In 1795 the house was sold by Anne Coffin, Anna Brewer and Elizabeth and Sarah Coffin all of Andover to Ebenezer Savory, Tanner of Methuen. His family including Son Ebenezer, a teacher at the Newburyport Academy - which stood across High Street from Fruit Street. The house remained in the family until the death of Elizabeth Savory c. 1890. The property was left to the Belleville church who sold the property to be developed as the lots (houses) we see today. The house was Victorian-ized in 1897 to the appearance we see today.

Unfortunately, the house has been permitted to decline into its present condition for at least the last 25 years maybe more. When will someone come along and restore it?

Five Town Community Thanksgiving

Eight community churches from Boxford, Byfield, Georgetown, Groveland, and Rowley will participate in an Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service hosted by the First Congregational Church of Georgetown, on Tuesday evening, November 22, beginning at 7:00 p.m. Everyone is invited to this all-inclusive celebration of our citizens' many blessings, and is an opportunity to bring together the faith community. The church is located one block from Georgetown Square, on Rte. 133 (Andover Street) and across from Town Hall. The sanctuary is handicap accessible by elevator near the back parking lot entrance.

A Coffee Social will be held in the Fellowship Hall immediately following the service. Participants have the opportunity to donate non-perishable Food Pantry items for distribution before Thanksgiving

Rowley COA Veteran's Brunch

On Thursday, November 10th, the Rowley Council on Aging hosted a Veteran's Brunch at the Congregational Church in Rowley. The day also happened to be the 247th Birthday of the United States Marine Corps. The theme for this year's celebration, "Let us serve you as you have served us."

The event was attended by over thirty veterans. Dan Tremblay, of Heritage Films provided a repertoire of patriotic songs as the Veterans filtered in. Pine Grove students recited poetry and handed out cards they had made for the Veterans. Senator Bruce Tarr was also in attendance and spoke to the Veterans. The COA would like to thank all of the volunteers who made the event possible.

It is tradition in the Marine Corps that the youngest Marine at the celebration cut the cake and serve the eldest member of the Marine Corps. Here Carolyn Lynch serves Nick George at the Veterans Brunch on November 10th.

The women softballers sold tickets for $10 to play the heads or tails game. Of the 120 who attended, 105 joined in with some players giving more.

One of the 100 Solace has helped was Jim Wilson, the editor and publisher for The Town Common, who died earlier this month. Wilson placed the Solace Comedy Night flyer on a full page of the newspaper for months. He also donated his Good Earth soy candles for the raffle.

"Thank you, Jane and Jim and The Town Common Newspaper. Jim will always be there for Solace, and we will always be there for Jim," Levasseur wrote.

Children and Families office in Salem, the Adoption Journeys Child & Family Services in Lawrence and the Children's Law Center in Lynn. A fourth horse will return to the Clark School.

The blanket of flags from around the world on each horse symbolizes the international nature of adoption today. Ellis, who was adopted himself, told the crowd that packed the probate courtroom, "Adoption knows no borders. Adoption is human."

Instead of the usual nine months of pregnancy, Ellis' parents, who attended the ceremony, waited nine years for the call from the agency that helped them adopt young Jeph. In what he described as an adventure, Ellis said, "I have always felt loved."

He now has two children of his own. In recent years, he found his birth mother and has a good relationship with two siblings.

Army Lt. Col. Marisol Chalas, who adopted her niece after her sister died, said there are 113,000 children in the U.S. waiting to be adopted. The Blackhawk helicopter pilot, stationed in California, came to the U.S. as a child from the Dominican Republic. She is the first in her family to go to school and now commands a California base.

The Clark students volunteered their time and creativity to paint the horses, Ellis said. "There was a lot of love and excitement that went into it," he said.

The adoptions were conducted by First Justice Frances Giordano, Hon. Michael Anderson, Hon. Rudolph Black, Hon. Elizabeth Teixeira and Hon. Jennifer Ulwick. The celebration was organized by Debbie Noyes, the Essex County Adoption Coordinator.

Event sponsors include the Essex Bar Assn., Ryan & Wood Distilleries in Gloucester and Todd Flannery, owner of Flannery's Handyman.

Parks Conservancy / Foundation Ties

drawn up by Healey, Deshaies, Gagliardi & Woelfel, PC states, 'the Foundation resolves to create an account at a local banking institution, to wit: The Provident Bank, in the name of the Foundation d/b/a The Newburyport Parks Conservancy with a Trustee, James Agrippa Morrill and John Grady as signatories'."

The long-time parks employee admitted, "It is confusing, but not illegal that the checks used by the Conservancy list the umbrella foundation as the account holder rather than the Newburyport Parks Conservancy. This is why the refund check issued by the Newburyport Parks Conservancy to Ann Marie Monzone appears to be from an entity that is separate from the Conservancy, when in actuality was issued from the Conservancy bank account."

Jack Grady, the financial advisor to the Morrill Foundation, sent a copy of the 2012 certificate to the council.

The problem, as pointed out by councilor Jim McCauley, is that the DBA certificate was never accepted by the city clerk, as required, and it expired in 2016.

"So, it's been invalid since then," McCauley wrote in an email.

In a four-paragraph email to all city councilors, foundation president Robert Morrill wrote: "The Conservancy was designed to be a separate entity from The Mayor Gayden W. Morrill Charitable Foundation. The foundation paid for it to be established with the only connection being to ensure that all independent donations would be tax free. In addition, the Foundation would pay any administrative costs so 100 percent of the specified donation would be spent as directed."

Morrill has hired Lisa Mead, a leading attorney and former mayor who established the Parks Commission in 1996, to represent the foundation.

He closed the email to the council, writing, "The City benefits, the residents' wishes are met, and the Conservancy is the conduit. The City Council receives no money and with no passing through the City no City councilor involvement takes place."

The foundation has also asserted that it is a private organization and should not be subject to a city audit. But council members disagreed, saying once the foundation took public money, it could no longer hide behind its claims of being a private foundation.

The foundation, named for the city's 47th mayor, has been a leading supporter of improvements to the city's 26 parks.

Zeid and McCauley have asked Reardon to conduct a forensic audit into the donated funds to the conservancy and deposited in the foundation accounts.

Reardon has agreed to conduct a standard audit of the financial records for the conservancy and foundation,

Brighter Smiles...

DIABETES & DENTISTRY - PART 2

levels in diabetics.

If you are pre-diabetic, your dentist may actually be able to help prevent diabetes. If you already have diabetes, your dentist may be able to help you keep it under control, improve your quality of life, and reduce the risk of premature death.

There's even better news. It's never too late to improve oral health care. Even if you already have severe gum disease or other dental problems, proper treatment can help stop it in its tracks. In many cases, dentists can even reverse the damage done to your teeth and gums as well as manage the metabolic elements of diabetes. And, if you haven't yet developed any symptoms of diabetes-related oral health problems, your dentist can start a prevention program that will help you stay in control of your diabetes, maintain better health and enjoy a preferred quality of life.

Perhaps the best news is that this is something that doesn't require exercise, taking a pill, giving yourself a shot of insulin, or sticking to a special diet. However, some or all of these things may be necessary to also help control diabetes. From an oral health perspective all you need to do is to start seeing your dentist and talking to him or her about your particular situation.

When it comes to partnering with you to manage the oral health issues in regards to diabetes or pre-diabetes, there are going to be varying degrees of participation from dentists, depending on their knowledge or "philosophy" of care. The best team approach is between the doctor, the patient and the dentist. If one of these team members does not participate, the battle cannot be won. Often times, it is the patient who is not doing the things that he or she needs to do to properly manage the problem. If the dentist does not seem too concerned about your diabetes and you have the desire to have your oral health properly managed and are willing to do your part, find a new dentist.

The point is that this is a serious issue and if you, the patient, wants to take control of it, a team effort is needed. Find the right team. Make a commitment to improve your health and quality of life. You can do this.

Dr. St. Clair maintains a private dental practice in Rowley and Newburyport dedicated to health-centered family dentistry. If there are certain topics you would like to see written about or questions you have please email them to him at jpstclair@stclairdmd.com. You can view all previously written columns at www.jpeterstclairdentistry.com/blog.

Last week I discussed the role and effect that diabetes has on oral health. It is not something that should be taken lightly. If you missed this column, please visit the website at the end of this column or e-mail me directly and I will send you a copy.

After reading last week's column, it may seem frightening that there is no way out of the partnership of horrors between diabetes and severe gum disease. There are solutions. Just as poor oral health can compound a diabetic's situation, proper oral health can come to the rescue.

Clinical studies confirm that treatment of gum disease reduces oral inflammation, which removes the factor that triggers the body's inflammatory response which, in turn, plays a major role in compounding the effects of diabetes. Dental treatments that fight gum infections also help improve control of blood sugar instead of a forensic audit, which is usually done when laws may have been violated.

Regarding the bench donation that prompted the probe, Reid wrote that Monziona initially sent a check for $1,000 in early 2022 to adopt an existing bench along the waterfront at Joppa Park.

But the city did not have a bench available. Monziona was told in March that the Conservancy could either refund her money or she could pay for one of the granite block seats along Clipper City Rail Trail at Coombs Wharf for $3,000, Reid wrote.

She agreed to the larger donation and sent another $2,000 check. In late 2021, the Parks Commission had approved the granite blocks as seating along the waterfront side of Clipper City Rail Trail in the Coombs Wharf area.

Reid said it was a long process to acquire the granite blocks and took months to find a granite engraver. Monziona grew frustrated and set Oct. 1 as the deadline, or she wanted her money back. In September, Parks Commissioner Paul Swindlehurst stopped the engraver who was working on the bench because the work had not been approved by the commission.

Since the bench was not completed by the deadline, Reid wrote that she asked Grady to issue a refund.

Reid also wrote that the fee for a new bench of $3,000 was adopted by the Parks Commission years ago to pay for benches and allow for extra funds to help cover park operations. "None of us realized at the time that this 'fee schedule' should have been ratified by City Council," she wrote.

She promised that all outstanding plaques and bricks that have been paid for will be installed by the Parks Department.
