A Food Revolution Has Arrived to the Lower Merrimack Valley, Seacoast and Beyond

By Stewart Lytle, Reporter

LOWER MERRIMACK VALLEY – A revolution in providing food security is happening here this summer.

On Rte. 1 in Salisbury in the old ENPRO Services building, Seacoast Regional Food Hub, an umbrella organization that includes Our Neighbors Table and 16 other food banks and service centers, is finishing out a modern building that a medium-sized retail grocery operation would envy.

Trucks loaded with food from the Greater Boston Food Bank roll in to three newly built loading cross docks where they unload into giant refrigerators and freezers, plus rows and rows of shelves for non-perishable goods.

After they leave, vans begin arriving at the same docks to load high quality food. Once loaded, the vans bring the food to volunteer-driven food banks, senior and community centers and schools across the Lower Merrimack Valley from Salisbury to the Greater Lawrence area.

The facility, which was conceived by ONT director Lindsay Haight and her team of board members, donors, staff and customers, who are called guests here, is not cheap. With inflation, the price tag has risen from $2.5 million to construct the 24,000-square-foot building to $7.8 million when it was finished building.

Haight and her devoted team have raised $4.72 million, including $1 million from 100 loyal donors. Rep. Seth Moulton, D-Salem, secured $250,000 while state legislators appropriated $400,000 for the facility. Foundations gave another $1.5 million.

The balance is mortgaged at a less than 3 percent rate, but that blessing ends in 2027.

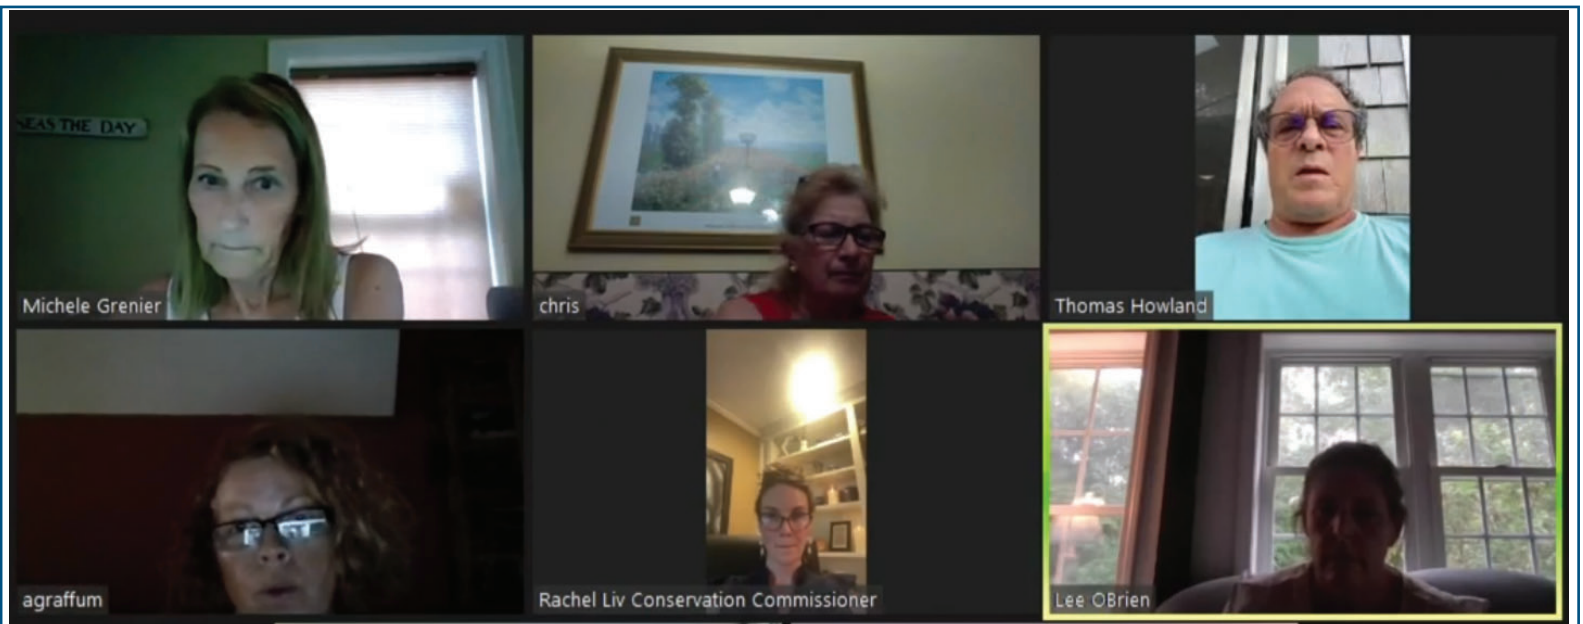

Her goal is to have donors make three-year pledges by September (Labor Day, if possible) for the $3 million plus needed to retire the mortgage -- so "we can be debt free," she said.

That would mean that all monies the food bank raises and all the time her staff of 17 spend on raising money in the future it can be spent feeding the current 32,000 guests and working to keep millions of pounds of wasted food

Conservation Agent's Salary Lowered - Again

By Stewart Lytle, Reporter

GEORGETOWN – The town's Conservation Agent, which reports to the Conservation Commission, is being paid even less than she thought. Michele Grenier's contracted salary when she started with this town is now $49,000 instead of $65,000.

For weeks, Grenier, an experienced and well-educated town official, has been at odds with Town Administrator Orlando

Pacheco, who insisted two weeks ago that she was contracted to work for the town for 24 hours, not 32 hours as her contract

Obituary Lucy Busselle Myers

Lucy Busselle Myers, 86, of Vineyard Haven and Ipswich, died peacefully at her home on the Vineyard on Tuesday, June 25, surrounded by her family. A devoted mother and grandmother, life partner, and friend to many, she was cherished for her kindness, integrity, and deep reserves of inner strength. She grew up summering on the Vineyard, where sailing, sea kayaking, and gathering mussels, beach plums, and watercress were among her favorite activities.

Lucy was born December 24, 1937, in New York City, to Alfred Busselle Jr. and Martha Knapp Busselle. She grew up in Princeton, NJ, and attended Miss Fine's School, then Radcliffe College, where she graduated in 1959 with a degree in French history and literature. She earned a master's degree in education from Regis College, and taught secondary school English, French, and humanities for more than 40 years.

An associate of Amherst Writers and Artists, she facilitated writing workshops at Women in Transition, a minimum security and pre-release prison facility in Salisbury, Mass. She also volunteered at Girls Incorporated, a national research, education, and direct advocacy organization, and the Ipswich Council on Aging, where she produced two books – Memories of Ipswich and People and Place: Oral Histories and Portraits of Ipswich Seniors. She was a member of the Gloucester Unitarian Universalist Church.

Survivors include her partner of 35 years, Sally Willard of Ipswich, and her siblings Harriet Barrow of Vineyard Haven, Sam Busselle (Rebecca) of Millerton, NY, and Vineyard Haven, and Polly Bishop (Don) of Brooksville, ME. She is also survived by her sons Stephen Hanschka of Portland, OR (Buffy), Whit Hanschka of Vineyard Haven (Nancy Tutko), and Robert Myers of West Tisbury (Diana Waring), along with six beloved grandchildren: Sam and Rose Myers of California, Eli and Lena Hanschka of Vineyard Haven, and Hazel and Leo Myers of West Tisbury. She was predeceased by her son David Lindley Myers of Eastham, and her brother-in-law John William Barrow of Vineyard Haven.

Her family is planning a celebration of Lucy's life for a later date. In lieu of flowers, contributions in her memory may be made to Hospice of Martha's Vineyard or the charity of your choice.

Jonathan Amico Named Pentucket Athletic Director

WEST NEWBURY – Superintendent Justin Bartholomew and Principal Brenda Erhardt are happy to announce that Jonathan Amico has been selected as Athletic Director for the Pentucket Regional School District.

Amico comes to the Pentucket Regional School District from Wilmington, where he has served as Assistant Athletic Director for three years. While in Wilmington he served as Boys Basketball Coach, and created and coached a Unified Basketball team.

He also played a significant role in growing and rebranding the Athletic Department, which included creating a Captains' Council and Student-Athlete of the Month awards.

Amico also served as Director of Summer Sports Clinics for the Town of Wilmington.

Amico, a native of Danvers, was a three-sport athlete at Danvers High School. He was a captain on Danvers' state championship basketball team, and led the Northeast Conference in scoring on the soccer team in his senior year.

Superintendent Bartholomew and Principal Erhardt wish to recognize and thank departing Athletic Director Daniel Thornton for his years of service with Pentucket as the Athletic Director and as an Assistant Principal. Thornton will become a principal in the Lawrence Public Schools.

"Dan and his family have done tremendous work on behalf of our Pentucket student-athletes, and we are grateful for their dedication," Superintendent Bartholomew said.

Newburyport Fire Department Offering Community Connect Program to Improve Emergency Responses

NEWBURYPORT – Fire Chief Stephen Bradbury III is pleased to report that the Newburyport Fire Department has launched a Community Connect program to better serve community members in the event of an emergency.

Community Connect is a free, secure, and easy-to-use platform that allows residents and business owners to share critical information that will aid emergency responders, improving safety and response efforts for both property owners and first responders.

Residents or business owners can sign up for a free account with just their email, phone number and address, and then provide information including the number of occupants of their home, pets, any special conditions, emergency points of contact, and more. Residents will be able to safely input information about any specific needs so it is at the fingertips of first responders in the event of an emergency.

Businesses can provide information on things like emergency plans, staff, whether anyone in the business has mobility issues, fire control systems, and whether there are hazardous materials.

First responders will have access to information only during a crisis response. Information will be used for no other purposes and will not be shared.

The rollout of Community Connect is part of a major transition in the Fire Department to introduce the software program First Due, which covers every aspect of fire department operations, from real-time GPS mapping, record management, inspection records, asset management and more.

"We are always looking for ways to better serve the citizens in Newburyport," said Chief Bradbury. "By providing information about your household that you feel is important for us to know about at the time of an emergency, we can ensure you and everything you care about is protected to the best of our ability."

For more information, or to sign up for Community Connect, visit: www.communityconnect.io/info/ma-newburyport.

FOOD REVOLUTION

ONT was launched in 1992 in a pastor's closet at the Main Street Congregational Church in Amesbury. Its first lunch served eight guests.

When the word spread about the food bank, people lined up. Soon a trip to the church food bank was so popular it took 45 minutes with the guests often standing in the cold with children in tow or seniors waiting at home.

Haight arrived in 2010 as the first paid director. There had been two long-time volunteer directors before. The board, acting on the recommendation of her predecessor, hired Haight to grow the organization.

It took six years, during when ONT saw a 150 percent increase in the number of meals it was distributing to the community. "We were beyond capacity," Haight said.

Up stepped Amesbury businessman Greg Jardis, who donated a small shopping center at 194 Main St. plus seed money to help get the new 4,800-square-foot Jardis-Taylor center off the ground. It was an estimated donation of about $500,000.

Now closed while it is being renovated, the Jardis-Taylor Center was the first free grocery market on the East Coast. Before being renovated, it was distributing more than 1 million meals per year.

The new food hub at 114 Bridge Rd. in Salisbury is ONT's second free grocery store. In addition to the retail space, it has 7,000 square feet of storage, including 3,000 square feet of refrigeration.

The building was designed with months of input by 75 guests and volunteers working with the architects. "We wanted to create a genuine grocery store experience," Haight said. "That's what we built."

For her it also "gave the guests a sense of belonging," she said.

Haight credits Greg Ezell, the program director, for describing the ONT expansion best. He said, "Our building has changed. Our humanity has not."

Guests shop weekly, parking in a large paved parking lot. There is no more standing for 45 minutes waiting to enter the facility. Entry is accommodated with a membership card, much like Costco and BJ's customers use.

But as amazing and happy a place the free grocery store is, the warehouse may be the most revolutionary part of Haight's operations.

With the donated help of SPS New England, thousands of pounds of concrete were poured to create the three truck docks for the delivery trucks.

The Greater Boston Food Bank became a donor to the Seacoast Food Hub so trucks from ONT and 16 other food distribution points would no longer have to drive into Boston weekly.

But GBFB had a bigger vision. It asked ONT and the Seacoast Regional Food Hub to expand its operations from 12 to 17 food providers, adding Haverhill and the Greater Lawrence area, which included Andover, North Andover and Methuen.

Today, the U.S. Department of Agriculture ranks the Seacoast Food Providers among the top 12 organizations in the country for its efforts to combat food insecurity and eliminating food waste.

To get involved as a volunteer, donor or guest, visit ourneighborstable.org/foodhub.

Join in a summer stroll on the Salisbury Rail Trail at ONT's first-ever Trail to Table Walk from 9 a.m. to noon on Sunday, July 21, at 114 Bridge Rd.

CONCOM ISSUES

letter states.

Signed by Pacheco on Nov. 20, 2023, the letter states: "I am pleased to offer you the position of Conservation Agent in the Conservation Commission Office. We would like to have you start on Monday, November 27, 2023. The job will be allocated 32 hours per week with an annual salary of $65,000."

Eight of her 32 hours were to be allocated to the town of Essex, according to Pacheco's letter. Essex was supposed to reimburse Georgetown for her hours on Tuesdays, but backed out of the arrangement.

There was no provision if Essex did not employ Grenier. Her salary of $65,000 was dropped to $54,000 when Essex withdrew.

Then, at the Special Town Meeting, called last month to cut expenses due to the town's budget's $3 million shortfall, Grenier's salary was lowered to $49,000 annually.

"Orlando cut mine down to $49,000 without telling anyone, just snuck it in the town meeting budget, I did not know, the Conservation (Commission) did not know," she wrote in an email. "Everyone else received a 3 percent raise," she wrote.

Pacheco disagreed. "Her salary was not cut by the Town of Georgetown, in fact, she like all employees was given a 2 percent cost of living increase. She is still budgeted the 24 hours a week she was originally hired for. The Town of Essex did not choose to retain her, but it would be untruthful to say the town of Georgetown cut her."

Carl Shreder, who resigned under pressure from Pacheco and the previous SelectBoard shortly after negotiating her contract, wrote in an email: "The job was originally advertised for 32 hours/week in Georgetown. (Her predecessor) Steve (Przyjemski) was a 40-hour employee. I cut the job to 32 given the politics from Pacheco/BOS. Pacheco modified the position when on-boarding the agent."

Having an agent work for the Georgetown ConComm for 24 hours a week "was never discussed with me or the commission," Shreder wrote.

"Essex was not part of the formula," Shreder wrote. "I was aware that Essex was looking for assistance (my temp agent John Lopez had let me know). A few towns were looking for assistance. Neither I nor the commission ever spoke to Essex."

Grenier's salary was based on a survey of other towns, Shreder said. The hourly rate was within an acceptable range in the survey and slightly lower than Przyjemski's salary. The ConComm had a 40-hour agent and a part-time administrative assistant.

In addition, the town administrator "cut $16,000 from the Conservation bylaw fee budget, which needs permission from the commission and cannot for use of the general budget," Grenier wrote.

Under Massachusetts law, the ConComm functions more autonomously than other boards, reporting on many issues to the Department of Environmental Protection.

To cut the town's budget, the finance committee eliminated the administrative assistant positions for the ConComm, the planning and health departments.

Harry LaCortiglia, the Planning Board chair, wrote that his board had no input on the reduction in staff. "We were aware that the elimination of the Admin Position would be necessary to balance the budget without the override. A formal vote was never taken by the Planning Board, nor would it be required."

The Planning Board staff salaries were cut from $130,701 this year to $91,800 for next year.

"The Finance Committee and the Finance Director (the position filled by the Town Administrator) make these recommendations to Town Meeting," LaCortiglia wrote.

It was noted by several town volunteers that while some critical boards like conservation, health and planning, which have broad responsibilities for governing the town, had their staffs reduced, but the Town Administrator and his staff had an increase in salaries and expenses.

Under the SelectBoard category, salaries for those positions will rise from $218,000 this year to $228,760. That is a reduction from the annual Town Meeting, which agreed to pay salaries for the SelectBoard staff of $235,280.

Expenses also increased from $885,675 this year to $921,016.

Brighter Smiles...THE GOAL OF DENTISTRY

By J. PETER ST. CLAIR, DMD

There have been lots of changes over time in the materials used to restore teeth. Many of the materials I use today were not in existence when I started to practice. The most significant changes have been to materials that are tooth-colored.

There are very few patients who ask for gold or silver fillings any more. And, while some of these newer materials are tooth colored, there are factors which need to be considered in determining what material is appropriate for each individual situation. The longest lasting restorations I have ever seen are gold done by dentists who really knew the art of working with gold.

Prevention of decay and other factors that require teeth to be restored, is the best defense to not needing restorative dental work. Keeping up with maintenance cleaning appointments and listening to your dental team's recommendations regarding diet, homecare and other forms of prevention, such as nightguard use, is key to avoiding many dental problems.

One of my favorite quotes in dentistry comes from a pioneer dentist who died in a plane crash back in the 1970's named Bob Barkley. Aside from being the one who said "The best dentistry is No dentistry", he also said, "The goal of dentistry is to make the patient worse at the slowest possible rate". I think about this quote all the time when making recommendations and treating patients. Sometimes it leads me to recommend more extensive treatment, and other times it leads me to not recommend any treatment at all, even despite apparent need. Every individual has their own set of factors that need to be considered.

Dr. Barkley also coined the phrase "co-diagnosis", which refers to the patient taking an active role in their dental health. It is the role of the dentist to not only educate the patient on their specific situation and different options for care, but to also extract (pun intended) from the patient, their goals for their dental health. It is so important to think beyond the immediate fix sometimes. Taking the time to talk to patients about why things are happening, and about their choices for prevention and treatment, allows patients to become active participants in their health. I wish I could say that was the norm.

There are barriers to this model. One of the biggest issues facing both dentists and patients today is the role of patient's dental benefit companies. The trend is less costly plans with fewer benefits, and restrictions on providers. Oftentimes, to get the maximum (or sometimes any) benefit, the patient must seek a dentist who is participating in that particular dental plan. I would encourage staying away from any dental plan that forces you to see specific providers. You should always have a choice.

My simple suggestion is to take a more active role in your own dental health. Think forward and ask your dentist or dental hygienist about things that can make your situation worse at the slowest possible rate. You very well may be doing fine, or just need a couple of tweaks to your home care regimen. Find a dental team that listens to your concerns and takes the time necessary to establish a plan that makes sense and you are on board with.

Pentucket Regional High School Receives $140,000 State Grant to Increase Career Skills Education

WEST NEWBURY – Superintendent Justin Bartholomew is pleased to announce that Pentucket Regional Middle High School has been awarded a $140,301 Skills Capital Grant from the state.

This spring, nearly $15 million in Skills Capital Grants were awarded to schools across the state to support upgrading technology and instructional lab spaces, expanding career programs for young people and adults, and increasing capacity in workforce training programs across Massachusetts.

Pentucket's funding will be used to purchase industrial-grade equipment for the school's manufacturing, robotics, engineering, life sciences, and biology programs.

The state designated Pentucket as an Innovation Career Pathway school in April, in Manufacturing and in Environmental and Life Sciences. Pathway programs provide students with work-based experiential learning in high-paying, high-demand industries, meeting the growing needs of the region's economy.

Pentucket students entering Grades 9-11 in the fall will begin required course sequences, and create a capstone project or complete a workplace internship.

The Skills Capital Grants are awarded by the state's Workforce Skills Cabinet, which aligns education, economic development, and workforce policies to meet employers' demand for skilled workers in every region of Massachusetts. The competitive grants are awarded to educational institutions demonstrating partnerships with local businesses and aligning curriculum and credentials with industry demand to maximize hiring opportunities.

"Thank you to the Healey-Driscoll Administration for supporting our efforts to expand workforce offerings at Pentucket," Superintendent Bartholomew said. "We recognize the important role we play in supporting the regional economy and are excited to begin our new pathways in the fall."
