Rowley Call Firefighters Shown the Door

By Stewart Lytle, Sr. Reporter

ROWLEY – The Rowley SelectBoard last month eliminated its volunteer fire department and laid off its volunteer firefighters, effective June 30, leaving to new fire chief Daniel Veinot to decide if 16 full-time firefighters are adequate. [However, at press time, the Board of Selectmen agendized an item to designate Fire Captain Cooper Carifio to temporarily assume the duties of the Fire Chief ...]

SelectBoard member Cliff Pierce

voted against eliminating the call fire department, which will save $30,000 in pay this year for the volunteer firefighters. It passed four to one.

"Once we take this action, we can never get a call fire department back," Pierce said.

Veinot, a former Topsfield lieutenant, has not started working in Rowley.

The town is experimenting with staffing its fire house with four shifts of four firefighters each, with one being a lieutenant. That will give

Why Were Plum Island Beaches Closed Last Weekend?

By Stewart Lytle, Sr. Reporter

REGIONAL – A group of swimmers from central Massachusetts had planned to swim in the Atlantic Ocean last weekend when they were told on arrival in Plum Island that they would get sick if they ingested any of the water, heavily polluted with sewage.

"Is there any beach within 30 minutes we might try?" asked the frustrated driver. He was directed to Hampton Beach in New Hampshire.

This is not a rare occurrence for the beaches along the Merrimack River. But this time the heavy pollution that resulted in Plum Island beaches being closed wasn't caused by an overloaded sewage treatment plant after a heavy rain storm. It was the result of an accident by a contractor that released 60,000 gallons of sewage into the river.

The result was the same. The Plum Island beaches were closed until Monday to let the sewage pass.

According to the Newburyport Health Department, "The city of Haverhill began alerting nearby communities and residents along the river that a contractor during the heavy downpours that impacted the region, Haverhill discovered a break in a 42-inch sewer main near its main

Heroism Honored in Local Incidents

By Stewart Lytle, Sr. Reporter

REGIONAL - The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has awarded North America's highest civilian honor for heroism to three people for life-saving incidents in Salisbury and Ipswich.

The Carnegie Medal for Heroism was awarded to Gary M. Simard, who died trying to save his son caught in a rip tide off Salisbury Beach, and Kenny Crosby, who save the teenager. It was also awarded to Joseph F. Mello iii of Ipswich for saving his father in a house fire.

Veteran Georgetown ConCom Chair Not Reappointed

By Stewart Lytle, Sr. Reporter

GEORGETOWN – After serving on the town's Conservation Commission (ConCom) for more than a decade, the SelectBoard declined last week to reappoint the veteran chair Rachel Therrien to the commission.

It was the second consecutive ConCom chair that has been removed by the SelectBoard with no explanation. ConCom Chair Chris Candia was not reappointed in 2024. Carl Shreder, who served more than 20 years, said he was pushed off the commission by town officials, including then SelectBoard Chair Amy Smith and Town Administrator Orlando Pacheco.

The failure on a vote of four to zero with one abstention to reappoint Therrien comes at a time when the ComCom has a temporary, part-time agent, after Pacheco fired Michele Grenier in March. Grenier is now preparing to sue the town for wrongful termination.

The SelectBoard reappointed Ida Wye to a second term on the ConCom, despite criticism from other commissioners that she was absent for about half the meet-pumping station. As crews investigated the damage today, a second break was identified, confirming an ongoing discharge of untreated wastewater to the Merrimack River."

The health department closed the Plum Island beaches for 48 hours.

Human or pet contact with contaminated water can result in nausea and vomiting, respiratory symptoms, eye irritation and earaches, the health department said.

A persistent problem has been Combined Sewage Overflow (CSOs), which occur when heavy rain overwhelms sewage treatment plants upriver.

ROWLEY FIRE DEPT.

Rowley full fire protection coverage 24 hours per day. Currently, full-time firefighters are available from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The volunteer firefighters were on call at night.

But the SelectBoard members were uncertain if this schedule would work. "We don't know if this (schedule) will work," several SelectBoard members said.

Relying on call firefighters for nighttime coverage is too risky, Fire Chief Mark Emery told the SelectBoard three years ago. Many of the volunteers live in Hamilton, Salisbury, West Newbury and Haverhill.

Rowley has an arrangement with Ipswich, Georgetown and Newbury that their firefighters will be automatically called to Rowley at night if a fire happens. Most North Shore towns have fire coverage at night. ♦

Local Business Spotlight: Pratt's Hobby Shop

by Kay Lee Ogden

This week's "spotlight" business is Pratt's Hobby Shop, located at 20 East Main Street. Phone: 978.352.2234.

Tues - Fri: 12 - 6 pm Sat: 10:30 am - 4 pm.

Pratt's hobby shop was opened by Peter Pratt, in 1974. He retired in 2020 and that is when Rossana and Scott Paganelli purchased the business - on Peter's 80th Birthday! And it is extremely sad to say, that Peter passed away August 30th, 2023.

Pratt's hobby shop has been a town favorite for many years! Specializing in: remote control cars, boats, planes, plastic models, and supplies, as well as, gold and silver coins collections.

The kiddos love visiting their store as they have so much to offer. I remember the kiddos enjoying Thursday nights, and Saturdays, racing their cars in the downtown parking lot, with their dads, and families. The competition was tough, with the quality of cars, and planes, purchased from Pratt's store! The Paganelli's offer our kids the opportunity to explore, and engage in something other than the digital screen! It encourages them the sense of adventure, and fun with their fathers and families!

Pratt's Hobby Shop is an extremely unique store, offering trades of models, and purchases of gold and silver. They purchase gold, and silver, and will buy coins, jewelry, fine watches, and other fine gold and silver items.

Collecting coins is a terrific hobby for children; it teaches them, how to save, creates early investment, and teaches them how to make wise decisions.

People appreciate the human connection. You matter to the Paganelli's, and they are grateful that you chose them!

Their store is small but powerful! Offering U.S. and foreign coins is Nearly every inch of the small hobby shop is packed with gems - treasured models, supplies, and sought after race cars. the best investment. With the anxiety, and uncertainty of the future, with stocks, bonds, and your 401k, you have a long term advantage of owning silver, and gold, and it's in your possession!

Why do customers want to shop at your store? "Because we have a long healthy standing with the community of honesty, fair pricing, and treating people like family. We built our reputation, by word of mouth, and customer respect!" "People come from everywhere to shop with us, because of our reputation."

"This is a place for children OF ALL AGES (!) to come for healthy hobbies, and encouraging words, and have fun!!!!" "Please stop in, and see what we have to offer, you'll be pleasantly surprised!"

We offer free appraisals, on coins, sports memorabilia, jewelry, historical pieces, and old items!

NOTE: Pratt's Hobby Shop is located in downtown Georgetown near the intersection of Central and Main Streets, just a few doors down from the Salem Five. Be sure to visit them, then check out the other stores in the area, including the thrift store full of gems next door, the tea shop, and Tina's "Bent" Emporium across the street in the Eagle building (open afternoon), and don't forget Scala's across the square! A great lunchtime trip to explore all of these and more hidden treasures in downtown Georgetown.

These articles are written to help inspire people to support our small local businesses, as being a small business is tough, and we need the communities' support! Please shop local!!!!!! ♦

Vehicle Crash into Black Cow Restaurant Causes Multiple Injuries

NEWBURYPORT - It was a pleasant Thursday night, then at 6:23 p.m., police received a call after a car crashed into the Black Cow restaurant, causing multiple injuries.

Upon arrival, police officers and firefighters found a 2024 black BMW X3 sport utility vehicle had crashed into a wall of floor-to-ceiling windows just to the left of the main entrance of the restaurant.

Inside, three dinner patrons were hurt, and they were evaluated by emergency medical services. Two men were transported by Atlantic Ambulance Services to the Anna Jacques Hospital for treatment of injuries. The third patron declined to be transported. None of the injuries are immediately believed to be life-threatening.

The operator of the vehicle, a 67-year-old Groveland woman was not injured and cooperated with authorities at the scene. Alcohol is not suspected to be a factor in the crash, however the crash remains under investigation by the Newburyport Police Department.

An inspector from the Newburyport Building Department responded to the scene. It was determined that there was no structural damage to the restaurant building but that the bar area will need to be closed for repairs. The vehicle was removed and towed from the scene by Newburyport Towing Service, and the restaurant was allowed to remain open, with that portion shut down. ♦

Merrimac's Mill Street Bridge to Be Replaced

MERRIMAC - The Town of Merrimac Select Board shares that the Mill Street bridge replacement project has been fully funded through grants and that the project is set to move forward this fall.

In November 2019, the Mill Street culvert over Cobblers Brook failed, resulting in a total road closure. The road provided primary access to the Town's Wastewater Treatment Plant, a town Department of Public Works site utilized for winter snow operations and the Merrimac Electric Light Department Garage and Substation.

Since the closure, the town has worked to secure funding to replace the culvert with a new bridge about 100 feet north of the existing stream crossing, allowing the stream channel to return to its natural passage.

In June 2025, the town received $500,000 in funding through Massachusetts Department of Transportation's (MassDOT) Municipal Small Bridge Program, which provides financial support to cities and towns for small bridge replacement, preservation, and rehabilitation projects. Through that same grant program, the town received an additional $3 million in funding for Fiscal Year 2026.

In addition, the town received a $1 million grant from the

HEROES HONORED

Ipswich and Rowley firefighters were honored by the Ipswich and Rowley SelectBoards for saving the disabled Joseph Mello, in what Ipswich Fire Chief Paul Parisi called "a low frequency, high risk rescue operation."

On Sept. 20, 2023, Gary J. Simard, then 12 years old, was swimming in the Atlantic Ocean off Salisbury, when a rip current pulled him into water 8 feet deep. At about 75 feet from shore, Gary signaled for help.

His father, Gary M. Simard from Methuen, 44 years old, swam to his son in the strong current. Simard grasped Gary by an arm and tried to pull him to shore, but the current continued to pull them farther from shore.

On the beach, Kenny Crosby, a 34-year-old business owner from Miami Beach, FL, heard shouts for help. Despite the hazardous conditions, Crosby swam to them, reaching them about 150 feet from shore. Simard, exhausted from the effort to rescue his son, pushed Gary to Crosby. The elder Simard submerged and did not resurface.

With Gary in tow, Crosby tried to swim directly to shore, but the current prevented him. Changing course, Crosby swam parallel to the shoreline, eventually reaching wadable water with Gary. Crosby pushed Gary toward a bystander standing in chest-deep water. They exited the water onto the beach.

Gary was examined by paramedics at the scene and was not injured. Emergency personnel reached the father about 300 feet from shore. He was taken to the beach, where they tried to revive him before he was taken to the hospital. He was not revived.

On Aug. 18, last year, then-77-year-old Joseph Mello was recovering from back surgery when a fire broke out on the first floor of 383 Linebrook Rd. home in Ipswich. As the fire spread upward into the rear of the second floor and roof, Mello remained trapped in his bedroom. Across the driveway, his son, a 56-year-old business owner, was stepping into the shower in his home when he heard shouting. Barefoot and wearing only a bathrobe, the son ran outside and saw smoke pouring from the roof of his father's house. He raced inside and climbed the stairs to his father's bedroom. After he helped his father to his walker, he soaked towels to help them breathe. The father and son started down the hall toward the stairs, but dense smoke had filled the stairway. The son guided his father to a rear bedroom.

As firefighters responded outside, he opened the window and called for a ladder. Firefighters positioned a ladder to the window, and a firefighter entered the room to help him get his father onto the ladder. Firefighters lowered the elder Mello to the ground and then the son descended.

The elder Mellow was hospitalized for smoke inhalation, cuts and abrasions, but recovered. The son suffered smoke inhalation and abrasions but declined medical treatment. After a few weeks of coughing, he recovered.

state Executive Office of Economic Development through Community One Stop for Growth, a Mass-Works Program that acts as the main vehicle for public economic development investment in the Commonwealth. The programs within the One Stop include critical funding that spurs housing and economic development by investing in public infrastructure, preparing sites and cleaning up brownfields to prepare them for development, and supporting vibrant downtowns.

With the funding secured, the town has begun the process of preparing bid documents, and hopes to begin the project in the fall.

"The town of Merrimac appreciates the awarding of three grants totaling $4.5 million to restructure the Mill Street Bridge over Cobblers Brook. We are most grateful to the MassDOT and look forward to completing this project. It will provide access to a number of municipal facilities in our town for the betterment of Merrimac and its citizens," said Select Board Chair Janet Bruno. "Thank you to the state and our employees who spent so much time preparing the paperwork for submission: Robert Sinibaldi, Alyssa Sexton and Denise McClure, for their efforts." ♦

WAR ON CONCOM?

ings and did not attend the SelectBoard meeting on her re-appointment. It also appointed Smith, who has not served on the ConCom, and once proposed that the poison ivy in the community gardens be burned. That proposal was rejected by then Chair Shedder and then Vice Chair Therrien because it would cause respiratory distress for anyone breathing the smoke.

Smith, who chairs the town's historical commission, also did not attend the SelectBoard meeting last week.

Shreder lamented the SelectBoard's decision not to reappoint Therrien, whom he had mentored and served with for years.

"The ConCom is in a very difficult situation without a permanent agent or admin staff and little knowledge of the hearing process or types of filings or the actual mission of the Conservation Commission under the Wetlands Protection Act," Shreder said. "There is little knowledge left about the various filings and or town properties, the ConCom has responsibilities for."

Vice Chair Amy Graffum and Tom Howland have served several years on the commission. Wye has extensive agricultural experience in addition to three years on the commission. Most other members are new or are in their first term.

Therrien, as a SelectBoard member until this spring, was a frequent critic of Pacheco's job performance and demeanor towards her and other members of the ConCom. She gave him a low rating on his most recent job performance.

SelectBoard chair Doug Dawes, who voted against Therrien, said, "It was my call," not to allow her to address the board, although she was in attendance. It is standard practice to invite the candidate under consideration for appointment to speak, although there is no formal policy, as Dawes pointed out.

"I wanted as little controversy as possible," Dawes said. "There's enough of that to go around these days."

Dawes wrote that he cast his no vote because "the Conservation Commission has experienced significant controversy over the years. I believe this is an appropriate time for the Commission to move in a different direction, rebuild public confidence and focus on its important responsibilities."

The chair did not elaborate or explain what controversies he referred to.

"The ConCom has been well run and had few controversies. My perception is that the ConCom has the public's confidence and works well with the state Department of Environmental Protection," Therrien said.

"The only controversies I know of were generated by people who want to dismantle and control the Commission," Therrien said.

The ConCom, working with the state DEP, regulates residential and commercial activities and construction near waterways and wetlands and protects endangered species.

Ms. Therrien wanted to address the board. "I love the Conservation Commission and its work protecting the town's wetlands and endangered species. I hate that those who want to destroy our wetlands have won this round."

Other board members, Laura Repplier and Ed Dobie, who moved to reappoint Therrien, voted against her and did not speak at the hearing. They also did not respond to questions from The Town Common, including whether the vote was pre-determined or the subject of pressure. Dobie did not respond to a question about why he abstained or if he was asked in advance to vote against her. Repplier, who served with Therrien on the SelectBoard and ConCom, did not respond to the question of why she voted against Therrien or if she was asked by someone to vote no.

Hoover said, "No one asked me to not reappoint Rachel. That was my decision."

Holding several pages of paper, Selectman Michael Donahue, a frequent critic of Therrien, asked to speak about her reappointment, but Dawes told him to limit his comments to the motion. He put down his papers and said he was ready to vote.

In the past, Donahue submitted a 1,300-word complaint to the SelectBoard against her. The SelectBoard considered Donahue's complaint, but took no action. Town counsel KP Law opined that the complaint was only Donahue's opinion.

Therrien is on the witness list against Donahue in his suit against resident Kim Fair for calling him a "homophobe" on Facebook.
